THE RUSSELL PLAN FOR THE ORGANIZATION OF RESEARCH INTELLIGENCE IN THE DEPARTMENT

INT 603/4

I. Basic Philosophy

On 22 April 1946, the Secretary issued a series of regulations activating the so-called "Russell Plan" of research intelligence organization in the Department. In principle, the plan is simple. Organizationally, it is predicated on the fact that the State Department is set up on a geographic basis. This type of organization is necessitated by reason of the fact that most of our relations with foreign countries are of a bilateral character. Coordination of our foreign policy with respect to a given country or area, in the last analysis, must be accomplished on a geographic or regional basis rather than on a functional basis.

The political policy end-product with respect to a given country or area will necessarily include considerations of an economic, military, sociological and even domestic character. The analysis and evaluation of such non-political components of foreign policy is correlated through the "staff" echelons of the Department under the jurisdiction of the Assistant Secretaries for Economic Affairs and Cultural Affairs, respectively.* Intelligence research to be useful, must be integrated into this concept of "staff and line" organization. At the same time, it must be so organized that all aspects of research fit into a balanced Departmental program of positive intelligence related to authoritatively determined Departmental intelligence requirements and objectives.

* Exceptions to this principle of organization are found in the Office of Special Political Affairs and Occupied Areas where, because of the respective military and multilateral relations involved, a special service organization is required.

II. Organizational Objectives

UNCLASSIFIED

INT 603/5

The regulations attached (Tabs Bl-4) are intended to accomplish certain basic objectives:

- (1) To establish under the Special Assistant for Research and Intelligence a central Policy Committee on Intelligence with strong standing sub-committees, to formulate a Departmental program of research intelligence, and to assign project priorities.
- (2) To establish the Special Assistant for Research and Intelligence as the "staff arm" of the Secretary in the formulation and implementation of the Department's internal and inter-departmental programs of positive foreign intelligence.
- (3) To build up strong research facilities at the point where political decisions are made or action is taken.
- (4) To build up a strong central correlation and liaison group which will:
  - (a) Coordinate, monitor and review all departmental research staff studies initiated anywhere in the Department.
  - (b) Undertake such special research studies as may be required.
  - (c) Be responsible for the accomplishment of the Department's mission with respect to the National Intelligence Authority and any other Government agency concerned with the field of positive intelligence.
- (5) To establish one central group for the collection and dissemination of all positive intelligence data and materials.

III. Organisational Pattern

UNCLASSIFIED

WT 603 /6

1. The Geographic Offices. Under the plan, there is attached to each Geographic Office a Division of Research. This is a self-contained, non-operating "staff" unit at the Office level, under its own Chief, who reports and is responsible to the Director of the Geographic Office. The Chief of the Research Division is responsible to the Director for the research program of the Office and for the due accomplishment of the segment of the Departmental research program assigned to the Office by the Advisory Committee on Intelligence, through its sub-committee on Research Programs and Priorities. The Chief of the Division of Research should be the Representative of the Office Director on the sub-committee (of ACI) on Research Programs and Priorities. Though the Chief of the Division of Research reports to the Office Director, he and his staff are expected to maintain the closest technical liaison on all matters of research with the Office of Intelligence Coordination and Liaison and other research units of the Department.

The purpose of establishing strong research units in the Geographic Offices was two-fold: To provide balanced research facilities at the points where political policy is made or action taken and to make the intelligence operation sensitive to, yet independent of, the policy determining political divisions. In this manner, the Office Director is provided with an automatic system of checks and balances as between his "staff" or research unit and his "line" or policy Divisions.

2. The Advisory Committee on Intelligence (ACI)

The Russell Plan calls for the establishment of a Policy Committee on Research Intelligence composed of the Assistant Secretaries for Political Affairs and the Assistant Secretary for Administration under the chairmanship of the Special Assistant for Research and Intelligence. It is expected that this committee will meet only to consider matters of the highest policy. It will, however, have a full time working sub-committee with such membership as the Special Assistant may determine. The job of the working sub-committee will be to formulate a balanced program of research and to assign such priorities as will assure the optimum utilization of all Departmental research resources so that Departmental and Interdepartmental intelligence requirements are assessed and fulfilled on the basis of essentiality and relative urgency.

The necessity for a working group of this character which must be staffed by a strong secretariat, is illustrated by a partial listing of research consumers whose conflicting requests for service will have to be evaluated, monitored and phased:

Geographic Offices*

Economic Offices*

Special Political Affairs

Occupied Areas

National Intelligence Authority

Military Intelligence Agencies
(MIS, ONI, JIC, etc.)

To accomplish its mission effectively, the sub-committee of the ACI concerned with Research Programs and Priorities must be a responsible group, representative of the Department as a whole, each member of which must

* Other than Occupied Area matters which flow through GA and JK Secretariats.

-3-
be authorized to speak for and bind his Office. Each member of the sub-committee should be acceptable to the Special Assistant for Research and Intelligence.

INT 603/8

3. Office of Intelligence Coordination and Liaison (OCL)

The mission of OCL is vital to the success of the Russell plan. It is expected, inter-alia,

(a) To function, at the technical level, as the instrumentality of coordination and correlation of the intelligence research program formulated by the ACI or its sub-committee; to administer research priorities assigned by ACI or its sub-committee; to provide a permanent secretariat for the ACI and its sub-committee.

(b) To conduct specialized research on technical matters not within the cognizance of other research units; to organize and supervise cooperative research projects cutting across geographic and economic lines; to undertake such special studies as may be required of it by the Special Assistant for Research and Intelligence.

(c) To represent the Department in its relations with the Central Intelligence Group of the National Intelligence Authority and other Governmental agencies in the field of positive intelligence.

As the exclusive liaison group of the Department with the Central Intelligence Group of the NIA and as the Secretariat of ACI and its sub-committees, OCL is in a key position to coordinate the execution of the research program in its departmental and interdepartmental aspects. Because of this organizational vantage point, it is in a position to provide ACI or its sub-committees with informed recommendations to guide its formulation of the research program or the assignment of priorities.

It will be in a unique position to provide invaluable assistance to other research units of the Department with respect to the initiation, feasibility or status of research projects.

4. The Special Assistant for Research and Intelligence

The functions of the Special Assistant as set forth in the regulation attached (Tab B1) require no elaboration. He is the principal adviser to the Secretary with respect to all matters of positive intelligence. The ACI or its sub-committee is his consultative instrumentality for the formulation, planning and phasing of the Department's research intelligence program.

While the Special Assistant exercises direct "line" authority over his own staff and the Offices immediately under his jurisdiction (OCL and OCD), he has effective technical supervision over the Department's research program through the programming and priorities functions of ACI.

5. The Office of Intelligence Collection and Dissemination

The role of this Office is best portrayed by a description of the functions of its five Divisions:

(a) The Intelligence Reference Division (REF) has files of intelligence materials that already contain approximately 750,000 separate items.

These collections comprise all types of materials: intelligence reports, publications, telegrams, monitored broadcasts, captured documents, and intelligence studies. REF services its intelligence to all offices of the Department.

~~UNCLASSIFIED~~

INT 603/1D

(b) The Division of Intelligence Acquisition and Dissemination (IAD) procures for the Department intelligence materials through various channels. IAD also acquires for and allocates to various governmental agencies foreign publications received through the Foreign Service establishment. The Division distributes intelligence studies produced by the research and intelligence divisions of the Department and maintains a reference file of these studies.

(c) The Division of Biographic Intelligence (BI) has files of factual information and opinions on about 250,000 important individuals in foreign countries whose activities or views are significant to the United States in connection with the determination and implementation of foreign policy, and it constantly revises and develops these files. Upon request, BI prepares biographic reports on such individuals.

(d) The Presentation Division (PN) prepares visual materials such as charts, freehand illustrations, and mechanical drawings, for any office of the Department, usually for illustrating intelligence reports and administrative procedures.

IV. The Plan in Operation

Once the ACI or its Program and Priorities subcommittee establishes a basic research program for the Department and makes assignments thereunder, the intelligence operation will be on a current basis and every research project must be evaluated with respect to its essentiality and relative urgency.

(a) Clearance of Projects

This means that all projects to be undertaken by the Research Divisions or, in the field of special studies, by OCL, must be cleared through the program and priority mechanism. Several channels will be available, depending upon the origin of the project-proposal. In the case of the Geographic Offices, if the Office Director and his Research Division Chief agree upon the desirability of a project, the proposal will be sent to the project unit of OCL. This unit may immediately agree to the propriety and feasibility of the proposal and give the clearance; in case of doubt, the unit would consult with the Director or his Chief of Research. If no agreement can be reached, the OCL project unit will present the case at the next session of the priorities sub-committee of ACI (on which the initiating Office would be represented) for decision.

~~UNCLASSIFIED~~

UNCLASSIFIED

On the other hand, if the Director of Central Intelligence of the CIA wished the Department to undertake research for his organization, he would send the proposal to OCL through established liaison channels. The project unit of OCL would then, if necessary, submit the proposal to the appropriate Office for an opinion as to feasibility in relation to work load and office program before clearance. Other Offices of the Department, such as A-C, A-B or SPA would present their project requirements through their representatives on ACI or in many cases directly to the Project Unit of OCL. (Tab A, attached, outlines procedure on typical projects.)

(b) Mobilization of Resources

A useful feature of the clearing process is that the ACI and OCL, being familiar with all resources of the research staffs, will be able to arrange joint action of various research units upon appropriate projects, thus in effect adding to the resources at the service of any one geographical Office. When necessary, they can negotiate with other Office Directors for the formation of inter-office research teams for temporary action on specific projects. The Department in this way will make most effective use of export personnel wherever the individual may be located.

UNCLASSIFIED

INT 603/12

UNCLASSIFIED

(c) Project Lists

Further advantages flow from this centralized clearing procedure. It will be possible for the staff concerned to issue a list of projects actually under way and thus at once disseminate information about forthcoming work of use to more than one office, and prevent duplication of effort -- always recognizing that producing units may for security reasons wish to limit such advertising of certain projects. While scanning a project, the staff can also prepare a proposed distribution list for the anticipated report which, agreed in advance with the producing office, will facilitate rapid dissemination of the report when it is finished.

(d) Standards

Another concern of ACI, for the benefit both of the Department and of its "customers", is to maintain the quality of intelligence research reports. For this purpose, ACI will establish standards, and expect its staff to read all finished drafts before they are reproduced, to insure adherence to those standards. Only such editorial review can make certain that all parts of the intelligence organization are constantly alert in this exacting work. Actual procedures would closely parallel those of preliminary project-clearance, and there is no need here to repeat the channelling back and forth between Office Director and OCL, with reference of disagreement to higher committees.

UNCLASSIFIED

INT 603

In this fashion, the ACI and its Secretariat, in collaboration with the Office Directors and their Divisions of Research will formulate a co-ordinated program of intelligence research. It will accomplish that program through the mechanism of priorities; it will facilitate production by organizing task groups where necessary; it will maintain quality in the product by fixing standards and exercising editorial review; it will assist in making the product effective by guiding dissemination of reports.

V. Activating the Plan

It is of the essence that the plan be put into effect at the earliest possible moment. Subject to availability of funds for fiscal 1947 this appears readily feasible with the exception of the transfer of the Geographic Divisions of the old Office of Research and Intelligence (ORI) to the appropriate Geographic Offices of the Department. The controlling factors here are availability of space and the necessity of preserving these research groups as functioning units until the Geographic Offices are in a position to accomplish organizational integration as called for by the plan.

To provide flexibility during the transitional period, the phasing of the transfer is to be determined by the Assistant Secretary for Administration in the best interests of the Department as a whole.
